To write an opening to a story.

"You can't find me!" Shouted Enya in happiness. She dashed into a room ~~out~~ and ~~said~~ shut the door. She was playing hide and seek with her ~~younger~~ ^{were} sister Rosey and two older ~~sisters~~ ^{sisters} Aurora and Francesca. There ~~was~~ ^{was} a couple of blue bottles of the floor. In the wall, there was a ~~was~~ old, antique, oak wardrobe. Enya dived in and expected ~~the~~ ^{to} hear but the back but she was ~~amaze~~ amazed when she ~~was~~ landed on winter coats.

They were nice and soft some still dusty; some not. Then she heard the voice of Francesca "Ready or not hear I am." Enya took a big breath. Francesca came in and studied the room. "There's no one here!" She said and trooped back out. Enya was relieved. She decided to study Stay and lie down on the coats. She was surprised when she felt snow under her head. She stood up and her left hand ~~touched~~ ^{touched} some thing.

Well done - a good start to your story!

Thanks Mrs Hollowell

To describe a setting-in a story

"Ouch!" shouted Enya. There was a holly bush. "That's strange" thought Enya. Crunch - Crunch went the snow under her feet. There ~~were~~ lots of snowflakes falling. She grabbed a coat from the wardrobe to keep her warm. Enya stared at the amazing view. She was stunned at the view. Enya froze as still as a statue. There was a Robin in front of her. It was tweeting his beautiful song. Enya started to clap when the Robin finished his song. The Robin flew up on her arm and snuggled into her collar. "You need a rest" she said and picked her up and put the coat around her. The robin giggled and flew down a path. She followed it and found a torch. The Robin flew back on her shoulder. Enya picked up the torch. It shone in her eyes. There was icicles hanging from the trees, path and a tiny one starting to form on the Robin's

Beck! In front of her there was a giant frozen watermelon. She stood at in ~~smoke~~ ~~smoking~~ happiness. The snow sparkled like glitter. She ran and made a snow angel. There was a patter of feet. Enya jumped.

Beautiful description Hannah - well done!
Thank you Mrs Holland

To write an ending of a story.

Oh she was so frightened, even the Robin was shaking. There was a howl. Then a wolf Snow white fox emerged from the tree. "Why do you have my torch?" yelled the wolf.

"Sorry" Enya stammered. She was terrified quickly. She picked up the torch and gave it back. "Who are you?" She said confused because ^{the creature} she was white.

"I am a Zenko woman. Call me Snow" Snow said.

"Snow I am so sorry that I touched your torch. Please do not harm me" Enya trembled.

"Why would I harm A daughter of Eve" Snow announced.

"Daughter of Eve who is that?" Enya asked confused.

"you are a daughter of Eve" Snow said

"NO NO I am a girl not a daughter of Eve" She said.

"Would you like to come to my house, there is a feast ready and there is some lovely herb tea" Snow said

"OK then but only for a minute" Said Enya.

"It is just round the corner in a clearing of trees" Snow said excitedly.

"OK" Said Enya.

"Let's go jump on to my back" Snow said

"On your back, I can not go on your back I am to heavy heavy" Enya stammered.

"Well we'll risk it for a biscuit" Snow Said.

When they arrived Snow set ~~several~~ ~~secretly closed~~ ~~had~~ locked the door when Enya was looking at some pictures. They sat down and Snow ~~brought~~ brought out a musical instrument.

"It is a harp" Snow said. ^{went} She started to play and it made her Enya ^{want} to sleep so she did. She woke up with a start. The room was all dark and the fire was completely out. It's the distortion. There was a little muffle.
